THE FLOODS IN WESTERN LOUISIANA.

AFRICAN EXPLORATIONS.

M du Chaillu was born in Paris, in the year 1832. He came to the United States when quite a boy, and as soon as he was of age took out his letters of naturalization. His love of natural history and taste for ethnological studies developed themselves early, and he became a regular attendant at the meetings of our New York geographical and ethnological societies. In October, 1885, he left New York on his first journey of exploration in Western Africa. He selected for his researches the region of the equator, where it was supposed no white man had previously penetrated. It is covered with dense heat frequently reaching one hundred and forty-eight degrees. During his sojourn in this unhealthy region he was repeatedly prestrated by fever, and owed his pre-servation to a naturally strong constitution, and not to careful nursing, having been unable to induce a single white person to accommand him.

Classical readers may remember that in the Periplus, or voyage of Hanno the Carthageniau, written more than two thousand years ago, he makes allusion to th animal known as the gorilla. "On the third day," he ays, "we came to a bay called the Horn of the South. In the recess was an island like the first, having a lake, and in this there was another island full of wild men. But much the greater part of them were women with But pursuing them, we were not able to take ing stones at us. We took three women, who bit and tore those who caught them, and were unwilling to follow. We were obliged therefore to kill them and take their skins off, which skins were brought to Carthage, for we did not navigate farther, provisions hung in the temple of Juno, and the name gorillas was changed to gorgones. Two of these skins were jet in the temple at the time Carthage was taken.

It was the perusal of these traditions, coupled with the reports current among the negroes of the coast, that du Chaillu to venture upon this dangerous journey into the interior. The discoveries which he made then amply rewarded him for the perils which he encountered. In ornothology he added upwards of sixty new species to the existing classificates, and to that of quadrupeds more than thirty, among which were varieties of apes. On getting to the head with the gorilla. We cannot do better than to give the account of the meeting in his own words:—

nkeletons were brought to this country and were exhibited for a short time in New York and Boston. Strange to say they elicited but very little interest except among a few of our scientific men. They were then taken to Engiand where they created a great sensation and M. du Chaillu became one of the lions of the day. This difference of appreciation of the importance of these discovertes in the two countries can only be accounted for by the publication of his first book, "Adventures in Equatorial Africa," which made its appearance shortly after his arrival in London.

Even in Engiand there were persons not disposed to accept them as facts, and violent controversics followed in regard to them. Men of high scientific reputation, however, such as Professor Owen, Sir Roderick Murchison and Professor Aliman, of Edinburgh, manfully stood by M. de Chaillu, and maintained by incontrovertible geological and annomical analogies the probable correctness of his statements. A few discoveries subsequently made by Captain Burton and other traveliers on the same section of the African coast served to corroborate their truthfulness.

But not extinded that there should remain a particle of doubt on facts so important, M. de Chaillu prepared by a fastronomy, and also made himself to the study of satronomy, and also made himself acquainted with the management of photographic instruments. But not eatised that there should remain a particle of doubt on facts so important, M. de Challin prepared humeelf for a second journey of exploration. The better to qualify himself for it he applied humself to the study of astronomy, and also made himself acquainted with the management of photographic instruments. After three years thus spent, part being passed in the United States and part in England for the advantages of the British Museum, he left London for the coast of Africa on the 6th of August, 1868. A GRAND ROW IN TARMANY.

Free Fight in the Fourth Senatorial District Convention—Six Wards Boit from the Con-delegates and a great strife had been engendered between the Fox and Hogan party, of the First ward, and the Brennan party, of the Sixth, and on one or two occasions the disputes had promised to end in personal col-lisions. Behind and below the local difficulty lay the bad spirit that has recently made itself apparent among the ruling lights of Tammany, and which was seen in the recent election for officers of the Society, when the claims and demands of Mayor at the head of the Sachems Brennun and Hoffman against Peter B. Sweeny, Tweed and others, whom they accuse of bad faith and going over to the enemy, and their influence in the Fourth senatorial District Convention was exerted for the defeat of Congressman Fox, Justice Hogan and others, who have recently done good To this end they put forward Morgan Jones, an anti-For man, for chairman of that Convention, and Judge Oow ling for a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention was a contest in the Fifth ward, which was decided in favor of the anti-Fox delegation, and Morgan Jones was was a contest in the Fifth ward, which was decided in favor of the anti-Fox delegation, and Morgan Jones was elected chairman by one majority. A proposition was then made to proceed to the choice of candidates for the State Constitutional Convention, but this was then made to proceed to the choice of candidates for the State Constitutional Convention, but this was the signal for a general row. The First ward representatives showed fight, and a rough crowd of their friends broke open the doors of the hall and took possession of the Convention, threatening to knock the chairman deemed its prodent to retreat and throw his body out of the window afterwards. At this crisis the chairman deemed its prodent to retreat and declared the Convention adjourned until noon on Tuesday.

Yesterday the Convention again met and the scenes of rowdyism and violence were renewed, although the strength of muscle was with the other side. The choice of district delegates to the State Constitutional Convention being in order, the chairman proceeded to declare Judge Joseph towing one of the successful candidates, amidst a Babel of confusion. It was soon found, however, that this time his friends had provided against the contingency of violence. The Sixth ward gang took forcible possession of the Convention, as the First ward builles had done on the preceding evening, and for a time a desporate and dangerous fight seemed inevitable. But the Fox and Hogan party, find ng themselves unable to contend physically with the Sixth ward gang, called upon their friends to leave the hall and proceed to transact their business elsewhere. To this appeal the First, Second, Third, Seventh and Thirteenth wards responded on more acceptable, and the contenting and acts the foreign of the wards forming the Fourth Sentorial district, and leaving only the Fourth, sixth and Fourteenth, and the contesting delegation from the Fifth, to the Brennan-Hoffman party. The Recent Elections in Pennacola—An Ex-Rebel Beats an Ex-Federal—The Threatened Disturbance by the Negroes—The Defeated Candidate Alleged to be the Inciter—The Military Commanders, &c.. PRESSOCIA, Fla., April 3, 1967.

The municipal elections under the new regime of "free suffrage" were held in this city two days ago, and the Mayor elect is the first officer in the State who has been elected under the rules and regulations of the Military negro or no negro. One of the aspirants was in the federal army and occupied a position of major in a negro regiment at the navy yard here. The successful competitor (W. E. Anderson) was a captain in the rebel service. For the latter every white man in the place, save former received a very large negro vote, but was beaten one hundred and thirteen votes. The colored population was extremely indignant at the defeat of their candidate, and threats were boldly made of their intention to burn was extremely indignant at the defeat of their candidate, and threats were boldly made of their intention to burn the place. Such earnestness was exhibited by them in their menaces that the retiring Mayor sent down to General Seymour, at Barrancas, for troops to quell any outbreak. The General promptly sent up a detachment of mounted men, under the command of Major Brinkle, and their presence quickly quieted down the threatening darkies.

For about a week previous to the municipal elections mass meetings were held in the public sequare and at the Custom House. White and black mingled freely at these gatherings, and spoke from the same stand. A spirit of amity seemed to pervade the minds of the massos—ex-rebel and ex-federal officers and soldlers; blacks and whites expressed the highest regard for the maniness of each other, and everything would have passed off quietly had not a few turbulent spirits among the blacks, instigated by the defeated candidate, called a secret meeting of the colored men and induced them to array themselves against the whites. It was understood that if the candidate of the blacks was elected the stores would all be opened and the negroes, as well was every one else, would be allowed to help themselves. Whatever might have been done, this rumor caused a great indux of all classes and colors from every portion of the country into the city, in order to get a share of the spoils, and many of them were heard to grumble at their disappointment. All the excitement has, however, died away now, and if the colored people are still disastile, and many of them were heard to grumble at their disappointment of General Pope for this district gives universal satisfaction, and his first general order breathes the true spirit of a gentleman and an officer.

Important Circular from General Griffing—The Late Disturbance Near San Antonio—Another Version of the Afray—The Military Post of Victoria Discontinued. &c..

Gatvasros, Texas, April 5, 1867.

General Griffin, commanding the District of Texas, this morning issued the following important circular.

this morning issued the removing supersonal it says:—

Under the act of Congress, passed March 2, 1867, to provide for a more efficient government of the rebel States, and the supplemental act thereto, the district commander is required to protect all persons in their rights of person and property; to suppress insurrection, disorder and violence, and to punish, or cause to be punished, all disturbers of the public peace and oriminals. Jurisdiction of offences may be taken and offenders tried by the local civil tribunals; but where it is evident that local civil tribunals will not impartially try cause brought before them, and reader decisions according to law and evidence, the impediate pallitary commander will arrest or cause the ac-rest of the "finders or criminals and hold them in confinement, press ting their cases in writing, with all the facts secured, to these badquarters, with a view to the said parties being brought before and tried by a military commission or tribunal, as growided in section three of the Military bill.

The Hunair has already published by telegraph an account of a serious affray between a gang of desperadoes on one side and fifteen United States soldiers on the other, which courred on York creek, a few miles from San Antonio. The following version of the affair is from the pen of the editor of the San Antonio Herald, who was near the some at the time and heard the account from the citizens of the neighborhood:

A Union man named Lilly had accused two young men named Burnes of hog stealing. The laster demanded proof of the charge or its withdrawal, or in case of his doing meither that Lilly should leave the country. Lilly went to Austin, where he represented that his life had been threatened because of his being a Union man. A force of soldiers was sent to the scene, and arriving at the dwelling of the Burne' at two o'clock in the morting they demanded admission. The intentes offered to surrender, but the soldiers entered, with fixed bayonets at a "present," when one of the young men, thinking the next order would be to "fire," jumped through a window, and ran off uninged, notwithstanding a volley which was fired at him. The soldiers then bayoneted and shot the father and mortally wounded one of the sons, though the inster grasped his gun and fired at the retiring party, slightly wounding one of the soldiers returned and set fire to the house, but the rain extinguished the fiames.

The story told by the military differs materially from the above, but there is no truth in the report that the disturbance arose from political prejudicas."

The military post of Victoria, in this State, has been discontinued, and a temporary military post established.

Resolved. That we will act under the Military bill and its supplement in good faith, and do all in our power its reorganize under their provisions.

There were several freedmen in attendance.
